

Opening Scene:

- Angelica Frier is sitting on the couch watching her favorite true crime documentary. The clock reads 1:05am. Her girlfriend, Stephanie Brian, is usually not home at this time seeing as she works for a mysterious but reputable pharmaceutical company, her shifts are always in the night. Angelica doesn't really mind this since she knows how well they pay Stephanie and she isn't scared of being left alone in her own home because of her prior private detective career.
- Angelica begins to fall asleep on the couch when suddenly she is startled awake by a phone call, it's Stephanie. Stephanie usually never calls her when she's at work so this worries Angelica as she hastily answers the phone. Angelica can barely understand what her girlfriend is saying. It is all a mix of loud alarms, shouting, and what seems to be heavy footsteps, almost as if Stephanie was running away from someone. Stephanie hurriedly says "Angelica, help there is something terribly wrong going on here, I don't know what will happen to me just know that I love you" and with that the call is ended abruptly leaving Angelica wide eyed and heart pounding. She couldn't even say she loved her back! She thinks for a moment before she decides to put on her coat and run towards her car and drive towards the mysterious building where her girlfriend was last seen...
- Game starts after this!

-Once outside of the brightly lit "Smile Corporation", Angelica looks around. The building looks calm... like the crazy phone call she received from Stephanie didn't even happen in this building. Angelica takes a deep breath before she opens the large glass doors that lead into the reception of the Smile Corporation.
